About the festival

There are hardly many "new" things which last 90 years. Has the meaning of "new" or "contemporary" evolved? The 90th edition of ISCM World New Music Days will tell us.

We will celebrate this anniversary through the topic of Gates – gates between countries, their history and present, between artists and audience, between the worlds of professionals and students, and, maybe, we will also travel through the gates of time.

The celebrations will overtake three capitals – Košice, the capital of Eastern Slovakia, Bratislava, the capital of Slovakia, and Vienna, the capital of Austria.

The Slovak section of the ISCM began its history as the former Czechoslovak section and, after the division of the state, became an autonomous section in 1994. The Austrian section of the ISCM was formed as part of the ISCM itself at the moment of its foundation, in 1922, and they both pursue the common ideals of diffusion of contemporary music in their countries and internationally by organizing concerts, festivals, educational events, and, simply put, spreading the word about new music.

Conditions for submissions

Postmark deadline for submissions is 31 December 2011

General conditions

- one work per composer may be submitted, either by official or individual submission
- works composed in the year 2007 or later are eligible
- the Jury will not select a work by a composer, whose composition has also been chosen for the 2012 (Belgium) festival; the submitter will be asked to submit an alternative work.

Official submissions

ISCM Members may submit a specific number of pieces corresponding to their membership category (Sections: 6, Full Associate Members: 6, Affiliated Associate Members: 3) to be assessed by the 2013 ISCM WNMD Jury.

To guarantee the selection of at least one work, official submissions of Sections and Full Associate Members should fulfill the following:

- consist of exactly six (6) works in at least four (4) different categories, as specified in the Call for scores (refer to Art. 26f of the ISCM Statutes).

Individual submissions

Composers or their authorized representatives may submit one work per composer.

An entry fee of 50,- EUR is mandatory with all individual submissions.

The fee can be paid in one of the following ways:

- by Credit card using PayPal at www.iscm.org
- via Bank transfer to the ISCM account, by mentioning:
